The Roscoe Smith House appears eligible for the State and National Registers under Criterion B as the home Roscoe Smith, founder of Orange and Rockland Utilities and widely recognized as the man who "brought electric light to the Hudson Valley." In 1905 he convinced investors to buy stock in his planned electric company, resulting in the incorporation of the Orange Utilities Company by the end of the year. Over the course of his career Smith's company acquired and merged with many power companies, eventually becoming Orange and Rockland Utilities, Inc. Smith's passion extended beyond entrepreneurship as he was a philanthropic antiquarian, having donated land for the museum village of Smith's Clove in which he displayed his collection of twenty buildings dating from the 18th and early 19th centuries. Smith's passion for collecting is also visible at the Roscoe Smith House, which was reportedly built c. 1906, and displays artifacts within the landscape including waterwheels, windmills, and grist mill stones. After Smith's death in 1976, the property remained in his family until it was sold 20 years later. Contributing features to the property include the main house with matching garage, the stone dam and subsequent pond, stone pillars with entry gate, two pedestrian footbridges, two waterwheels and two additional outbuildings of unknown purpose which are in a significantly deteriorated state and may have been moved to the property as part of Smith's hobby of acquiring structures.
